WE WIN.

The election day of Monday was ushered in with a snow storm, and the early morning gave every indication of a stormy day. But the sun came out finally, and the remainder of the day was all that could be desired.

Hardly ever in the annals of the opening of the town election has such a company assembled to elect a moderator. But owing to certain conditions no opposing forces appeared as had been announced, and on motion of Mr. M. S. Drew, Mr. Walter A. Robinson was nominated and elected. The following tellers were chosen to serve: Messrs S. B. Wood, F. F. Russell, S. P. Prentiss, C. T. Bunker, A. F. Bridgman, Geo. H. Peirce, D. W. Daley, I. J. Colbert, M. E. Callahan and Thomas Horgan, while Messrs. Edgar Crosby and J. J. Mahoney were appointed ballot clerks.

The contest of the day was fought by those interested in the assessorship, and for a time it was so close as to make it decidedly interesting. Some four hundred votes had been cast at the noon hour. At this time Mr. George I. Doe and Mr. Leander D. Bradley were about tied, but as the day wore on the gap widened, and the forces at the Heights, who had made a grand good fight to elect Mr. Bradley, withdrew. It was a sure thing for Assessor Doe from two o'clock on, and he was elected by 89 votes, a good victory considering the light vote cast—791.

The office of selectman, which many predicted would not be a walk over, surely could be termed nothing else, for the vote stood 164 for Walter B. Conant and 589 for Walter Crosby, a difference of 425 votes. It was evident early in the voting that Mr. Conant's supporters were not supporting him as they should, and finally dropped out altogether.

The only other office which had two candidates was that of park commissioner, and in this Mr. Frank W. Hodgdon beat Mr. W. A. Muller hands down. Mr. Hodgdon is most admirably adapted for the office, and will be the right man in the right place.

Mr. W. A. Peirce asked that the motion for the celebration of Patriots' day which had made during the day, be taken from the table. On this motion $300 was voted and the expenditure of the same will be by a committee composed of Messrs. E. S. Fessenden, W. A. Muller, E. S. Farmer, Miss Annie M. Stevens, and Charles Gott.

Before the counting of the ballots was finished, Mr. W. G. Peck made a motion that the selectmen be named as overseers of the poor and highway surveyors, and on his motion also (under article 39) the selectmen were authorized and instructed to appoint an inspector of electric wires, as per provisions of chap. 337 of the acts of 1899.

Messrs. O. B. Marston and Winthrop Pattee were appointed by the moderator to act with himself in appointing a committee of 21, and later the following were named:

George W. Perkins, Frank Bott, Wm. N. Winn, Henry J. Locke, John Lyons, Thomas W. Talcott, Daniel Wyman, Charles H. Stevens, George D. Moore, Frank V. Wellington, Howard W. Spurr, Elbert L. Churchill, Horace A. Freeman, William A. Muller, William Basset, Clarence T. Parsons, James W. Brine, Waterman A. Taft, Charles H. Bartlett, William H. Allen, William H. Jones.

ADVERTISE.

A. V. F. A. PRESENTED WITH A SILK FLAG.

An Entertainment and Informal Dance Included in the Very Successful Affair Provided by the Wives of the Vets.

Rarely has the Town hall ever held a more enthusiastic and happy assembly than the one which gathered Wednesday evening to see the Arlington Veteran's Firemen's association presented with a handsome flag by the ladies of the town. The old fire veteran, Melville Haskell, was the busiest as well as the happiest man present. He was the chairman of the occasion, and to him is due largely the great success attained. The other members of the committee were Messrs. Edward W. Schwamb, treasurer, Wm. P. Schwamb, secretary, Timothy J. Donahue, James H. Reardon. This committee deserve the greatest of praise for the manner in which they worked for the success of the evening.

Some time ago some of the members of the association thought of procuring a parade flag, and in consequence Mr. Haskell and a few others thought it would be well to interest the ladies in the matter, and accordingly Mrs. Wm. P. Schwamb, Mrs. Henry Schumacher, Mrs. T. J. Donahue, Miss Mary M. Donahue and Mrs. Stephen J. Hicks were chosen as a flag committee to solicit funds to procure a silk flag. The work was done principally by Miss Donahue, Mrs. Schumacher and Mrs. Schwamb. These ladies met with a hearty response, and in very few cases were they turned away empty handed. Wednesday evening was the outcome of their labors, and the ladies should feel highly gratified with the great success they achieved, while the vets. are jubilant over the fact of knowing the ladies took such interest in them, and that they now possess so grand and beautiful a flag.

The platform was tastefully arranged with ferns and rubber plants from the greenhouses of W. W. Rawson. On the right of the stage were seated Messrs. C. H. Hubbard of Orient Heights, G. H. Hubbard of Springfield, Chief Engineer Charles Gott, Representative J. Howell Crosby, W. W. Rawson, Theodore Schwamb, Walter A. Robinson, A. D. Hoitt and Matthew Rowe.

The program of the evening was opened with an overture by Wiggins' orchestra, which was followed by two other selections.

Mr. Haskell, the chairman of the committee, then opened the exercises with the following remarks in his usual enthusiastic way:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I am proud tonight of having the pleasure of making a few opening remarks on this occasion. It is more than gratifying to the officers and members of the Arlington Veteran Firemen's association to witness such a large assembly present with us. It is a certain assurance of respect and esteem you hold towards the association. We extend to you all a most hearty and cordial welcome, and to our many friends who have so liberally and cheerfully contributed for the support of this entertainment, as on all previous occasions, we extend them our most sincere thanks. On the impulse of the moment fourteen months ago only I picked up a sheet of note paper, the motto on which was 'Arlington, wake up, and brake her down.' Little I thought at that time that that motto would prove such a success and result in such prosperity. It is not only a surprise to the citizens of our own town, for by the manner the members conducted themselves at the Fall River muster we won the first prize of honor and respect. The second prize we won out of 37 engines by throwing the second stream on the paper. Well may we feel proud. We certainly have the honor and respect of every town and city throughout the New England states. Members, go on the same track that you have in the past. Honor, glory and victory will follow you to the end. I now take the pleasure of introducing to you one who needs no introduction. He is known to all our town's people, having held many places and offices of honor. I now have the honor of introducing our president, Warren A. Peirce, who will act as master of ceremonies."

President Peirce said he thanked Mr. Haskell for the courtesy, and would not tire the company with lengthy remarks as the ladies had prepared an elaborate program. After announcing the fact of the flag presentation, Miss Mary M. Donahue, gowned in a pretty dress of white, and wearing white slippers, with the new flag in her hand, stepped out upon the platform, and addressing the president and association, said:

"Mr. President and members of the Arlington Veteran Firemen's association, it gives me great pleasure, in behalf of the ladies of Arlington, to present you with this flag as a token of the esteem in which they hold you, hoping that when you look upon it you will always remember that they are your true friends, and as the years go by may the friendship and love for the flag bind us still closer together. May it be an inspiration for you at all times to add to its glory and to the honor of your country and your town."

The flag is a beautiful one, made of the finest of silk, with silk fringe. The pole is topped with a gilded eagle, from which are fastened two silk streamers, one reading "Eureka I," and the other "A. V. F. A., Arlington, Mass." On a silver plate, fastened to the pole, is inscribed the words, "Presented to the Arlington Veteran Firemen's Association by the ladies of Arlington."

PREST. WARREN A. PEIRCE.

Miss Donahue certainly did her part well. In replying, Mr. Peirce said:

"In speaking for myself and the members of the association I can truly say we feel deeply touched as well as flattered by the great compliment you have bestowed upon us, and we heartily reciprocate the good wishes which have accompanied the gift of this magnificent banner just presented to us. We accept the gift with pride and pleasure and desire to tender our grateful thanks to the generous donors. Whether we shall succeed in meriting the great honor you have conferred upon us, remains to be seen, but we shall try to do our best, and whenever we look upon your elegant and useful gift we shall remember with gratitude the friends to whom we are indebted. Remembering that the colors of our organization represents its honor we shall try to live up to our motto—'Friendship, harmony and hospitality—and be worthy of the glorious emblem committed to our charge, the star spangled banner, a standard of value which represents the precious mettle of America."

The orchestra struck up the "Star spangled banner," and the applause was deafening. At this point Miss Donahue was presented with a beautiful bouquet, which she gracefully acknowledged.

President Peirce spoke feelingly as to how the citizens had given hearty support, and also his gratefulness to the town for the association's quarters. He paid a grand tribute to Selectman Farmer also.

The speakers of the evening were then announced, and Mr. Farmer was first called upon. He said he was asked last Monday to attend and make a few remarks, but as he had refused to say anything, as he was no speaker, and as there were plenty who could talk, he would not take up the time, but thanked the president for the courtesy.

President Peirce said he would call upon a man whom the town had honored with many offices, and knew all would be pleased to hear him—Representative J. H. Crosby.

Mr. Crosby said: "I suppose it will be in order to tender my sincere thanks to the ladies for the invitation to be present. I heartily appreciate the same, and only wish I had the ability to give a good red-hot fireman's speech, the same as Brother Haskell has just given. I did not receive my invitation till yesterday, and so have had no time to prepare a speech. I always feel at home at a fireman's gathering. About a year ago Mr. Haskell came to me and asked my aid. He said somewhere on the statute books there was a law whereby a veteran association could have a hall owned by the town to hold meetings in at a small cost. I told him I would look it up. I consulted the best authorities on the hill, but they said there was no such law, but finally, after looking up the matter very carefully, found that there was such a law, and Mr. Haskell was right. The next I knew the association was formed and started. I was not old enough to have any experience with old hand engines, as I was too young, but used to run to fires. In those days the firemen would run to fires of any kind, and often would run to the moon rising. But to be serious about the flag, this beautiful banner which has been presented to you tonight stands for freedom and national unity. A few years ago when travelling in foreign lands I saw the British, German, Russian, and every nation's flag but our own, but when I did see the stars and stripes my eyes filled with tears. Our flag means much. It is different from any other nation's. It does not stand for a distinct people, but for all nations does it float. All creeds have died for the flag. Our banner is the most beautiful the sun ever shone on. It has never been stained by going into battle for a tyrannical or an unworthy cause. It floated on to victory 100 years ago, in the rebellion, and in the late war it enlisted in the beautiful cause. Whether this beautiful flag is carried on the street or is in the hall, all may have a chance to look upon it and know what it means. I thank you, ladies, and members of old Eureka, for this honor."

Mr. Walter A. Robinson, after giving a short introductory, read a short paper which was interesting.

Mr. Warren W. Rawson was next introduced as a man who always honors a fireman, he being a born fireman himself, and when they go to him with a paper, never come away empty handed, and he said:

"I thank the ladies for the honor of being present, but I will not thank the one who asked me to speak. I have a deep and great interest in your association. Well do I remember old Eureka in years gone by, and ran to all the fires as I took pleasure in running. We are all supporters of the flag. I hope the ladies of the town will stand by and keep Mr. Haskell on the track. His first oration was heard by me at Menotomy hall, but it was more enthusiastic than this one. He is the right man at the head, and if kept on the track will bring honor to the association."

President Peirce said there was thing the ladies did not have on the program, and then introduced Mr. G. H. Hubbard of Springfield, who said:

"When I came here I did not intend to make a speech. I came here when Eureka was new, and attended many fires. It is 45 years since I was here, and I thank the ladies for the invitation, as I came on purpose to attend this gathering."

First-assistant A. A. Tilden then came forward and asked Captain Thomas J. Donahue to step to the front of the platform, and said:

"Some time ago the committee in charge of the ball thought it expedient to offer some inducement for the members to sell tickets for their ball. After going through the list it was found you, a most efficient member, had sold 80 tickets, and I now take great pleasure in presenting to you this beautiful meerschaum pipe."

Capt. Donahue was completely surprised, and could hardly find words expressive of his thanks, but his words were fitting and to the point.

Secretary E. W. Schwamb was called upon, and read the following letters of regret, and said:

"The first letter I will read is from one who takes a deep interest in the association, in everything pertaining to old Eureka and the town. He was the first chief of the West Cambridge fire department, also first foreman of Eureka. I refer to William F. Setchell of Fitchburg."

38 Summer street,
Fitchburg, March 5, 1900.

Dear Sir,—Your kind invitation in behalf of the ladies of Arlington, to be present at the presentation of a parade flag to the Eureka on the 7th inst., is received. You will please accept my thanks for same. I am very sorry to say it will be impossible to be present, as my poor health will not allow me to go away from home at the present time.

AT THE TOWN HALL.

The citizens of Arlington were entertained and instructed on Sunday evening, the occasion being the no-license meeting, by the address of the chairman of the evening, Representative J. Howland Crosby, and that of Mrs. Fessenden, ex-president of the Women's Temperance union, and by that of the Hon. W. D. Howland of Chelsea, a member of our state legislature. Mr. Crosby, in introducing the subject of the hour, made an eloquent appeal to the citizens of Arlington that the town should continue its temperance stronghold. Representative Crosby made an argumentative speech, and it was enthusiastically received by his audience. Mrs. Fessenden eloquently insisted that no license for the sale of intoxicating liquors should be granted in Arlington or elsewhere throughout this broad land of ours on the grounds of what is everlastingly right. She placed before all mere policy, however excellent that policy might be; the moral obligations resting both upon the individual and the state to save its men, women and children from the accursed effects of alcoholic stimulants. Mrs. Fessenden showed by the statistics that license, in spite of its highest revenues, is a financial loss to the state, and a still greater loss to the public in the impoverishment and demoralization of its people. Mrs. Fessenden throughout her interesting address, made it plain that she occupies the higher vantage ground of total abstinence from all intoxicating drinks by placing this whole question of no-license upon the demands of good citizenship and sound morals. The speaker evidently had no thought of this or that political party in what she so well and so urgently said on Sunday evening. Mrs. Fessenden has no political ambitions to satisfy, so she spoke without any mental reservation whatsoever. Her address was enthusiastically received by her audience.

Following Mrs. Fessenden came the address of the Hon. W. D. Howland of Chelsea. Mr. Howland, while a no-license man, takes a somewhat more conservative view of this question than does the ex-president of the Women's Temperance union. Mr. Howland discussed his own interrogatory, "Is it best for Arlington to grant license for the sale of intoxicating liquors?" And by "is it best" he brought out in his discussion that he had reference thereby to the material prosperity of the locality granting such license. So that Mr. Howland was necessarily somewhat limited and hedged about in what he said, having in mind that middle class in every community whose votes count, and whose members may by adroit requests and pleadings be brought to vote for no-license simply as an experiment of doubtful outcome. Thus was Mr. Howland shut out from the start from the wider and broader field in which Mrs. Fessenden so delights so far as this all-important and vital question is concerned. We are in closest sympathy with Mrs. Fessenden's thought of this entire subject. With her we believe that it is everlastingly right that the sale of intoxicating liquors should be prohibited by law, and we quite agree with her that this everlasting right overshadows while it logically embraces all mere policy for the best, whether that policy has reference to the material or political well-being of the individual and the state.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The congratulations of the Enterprise are hereby extended to all Arlington for the happy outcome of the town election on Monday. We wrote in our issue of last week an editorial headed "Our Candidates," every man of whom has been handsomely elected. While we congratulate all the successful candidates from B. Delmont Locke down through the entire list, we especially congratulate Walter Crosby and George I. Doe on their re-election, for the reason that they met with an opposing force and overcame it with substantial majorities. We wrote in the Enterprise of March 3 as follows of Mr. Crosby and Mr. Doe: "Walter Crosby, as one of our selectmen, has shown himself a man of affairs, giving the same care and attention to the interests of the town as he does to his own individual interests. He will necessarily receive a decided majority on Monday." "George I. Doe has shown that rare and impartial judgment in his office of assessor which commands him to all Arlington. A man of large business experience, he has come to have a familiar understanding of real estate matters. Mr. Doe has served his town faithfully and well in all his official life, and Arlington recognizes this fact. There can be no question of the re-election of Mr. Doe to the board of assessors. Let every man of us be sure that we pile up his majority at the polls."

The Enterprise feels a peculiar satisfaction that it has contributed its full share in the re-election of town officials who have proven themselves over and over again competent and faithful in the execution of the duties imposed on them.

By the way, isn't it a most opportune time for the Advocate to now courteously recognize that there is such a paper published in Arlington as the Enterprise?

THE GAME OF MARBLES.

The game of marbles with the school boys throughout our more northern latitude is always prophetic of the springtime. Go where you will at this season of the year, you will find that marble-playing is the game of the boys just let loose from school. When the first patch of earth reveals itself from under its winter covering, then are the little folks down on their knees shooting straight for the other boy's marble. At the approach of the spring months this game breaks out as regularly as do the measles and mumps, and like these infant diseases they must have their run. There is unquestionably some unknown law governing the going and the coming of the marble season. It is possible that the reappearance of the bare earth is an irresistible introduction of this game of "ground nuts," as some one has facetiously termed it. There seems to be a natural and close relationship between the first patches of earth and the game itself; at any rate they come into closest touch with each other. And then again it may be that the boy's first desire of the opening season is to bring out at his game of marbles what Plato denominates that innate geometry that every boy has within him; for this game takes in not only the straight line, but it involves as well the whole science of angles.

Whatever the cause of the universality of this first amusement of the boys, it is safe to assert that the game is governed by some definite law. It doesn't simply happen that the boys everywhere are playing marbles at one and the same time. And this brings us to the thought we have in mind, namely: Does anything simply happen, whether it be in the world of amusement or in the world of industrial effort? Do not all things, however small and unimportant they may seem to us, move according to some fixed law? And wouldn't the world get quickly out of joint if things did simply happen?

The Arlington school boys at their game of marbles are receiving such lessons in linear and angular measurements, and in that exact force of touch, which must bring out the ratio that always exists between the means to be used and the result to be accomplished.

The boy at his kite-flying when the winds are at their best in the month of March is only studying the possibilities of aerial navigation. And so it goes—the world of amusement and the world of manual and literary industry are closely linked, the one being the prototype of the other. The boys after all are really men in knee-breeches, and the men are only boys in full dress. So that we are inclined to believe that one law governs us all, both in our work and in our play, and that nothing happens.

A LUCKY NUMBER.

Let it be written down in Arlington from this date on that the much-defamed and abused "13" is the lucky number after all, for there were just 13 Arlington women out of 128 names of the gentler sex enrolled who exercised their right in voting for the candidates for the school committee. We here and now doff our hat and make our lowest bow to those thirteen of our Arlington women who deemed it a privilege and a duty to speak in the interest of the children and in that of our public schools, and so took the time and trouble to make their way to the Town hall that they might cast their ballots in favor of good schools and consequently in favor of good government.

It is not a little difficult to explain why in a community like ours, where the Woman's club is so much in evidence, there should be so many of the other sex who are so absolutely indifferent that they do not care to express themselves through the ballot box when the right is theirs to do so, and this too upon questions so vitally concerning the highest welfare of the boys and girls. Just at present we pin our faith to the thirteen brave Arlington women who on Monday "knowing their rights dared maintain them."

Just think of it! Out of a male voting population of 1400, Arlington cast on Monday only 791 ballots, so there were 609 men, citizens of Arlington, who for some cause did not vote, and it is safe to declare that this cause was largely one of indifference.

Why not make more in our public schools of the science of popular government? Why wouldn't it be well for the town to annually make an appropriation for the support of evening schools, say for three months during the winter, wherein might be taught our adult population the underlying principles of all good government? Cruel as it may seem, we cannot well refrain from repeating what we wrote last week under the head of "Town Meeting," namely: "We have no love and but little respect for that man who is so indifferent to the public welfare that he will not take the time and trouble to vote." And sure are we that were we a young man we should never fall "desperately" in love with that young woman who had the right to vote upon school matters and yet would not exercise that right.

NO-LICENSE.

No-license carried on Monday by a good majority, so that Arlington is to continue her good name as a temperance town. Every man, woman and child in Arlington is fortunate that the saloonist cannot set up shop among our people. We are a law-abiding and temperate community. "A good name," be it remembered, "is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold."

Now, President Tuttle of the school board, you may be sure that you will have an intelligent public back of you in every effort you and your associates in office may make in so rearranging the curriculum in our public schools that the course of study shall fit the choice and ability of the pupil.

Leave nothing undone for the best interests of the children. We are all with you, President Tuttle and gentlemen of the school board, in every advance movement you may make in the educational interests of the town.

The election of Mr. Frank W. Hodgdon as park commissioner is an excellent choice. Mr. Hodgdon is one of our most worthy citizens, and a man well and favorably known both in private and official life. Mr. Park Commissioner, you have the best wishes of the Enterprise.

The town treasury is safe, and so are all the financial interests of Arlington, so long as B. Delmont Locke holds the purse strings. It is most creditable to Arlington that she has kept Mr. Locke in his present responsible position for so many years, and that she is bound to keep him where he is for years to come.

Now that we have elected our town officials for the coming year, let us not forget that "we are citizens of no mean city," and so, as one man, unite our forces that they shall prove invincible in the attainment of every good.

AT WHITTIER'S HOME.

It was on Friday last that we had the privilege of visiting that home in Amesbury made forever immortal by the life and writings of him who sang so sweetly for and to our American life. John Greenleaf Whittier wrote for the people, and drew to himself all hearts alike. The home in which he lived is a plain two-story cottage, with ample grounds around, in which there are a few apple trees. Mr. Whittier's sitting-room and study, he called his "garden-room," as it looked out upon the pleasant private grounds surrounding his home. In his study we saw the very desk at which the poet wrote "Snow Bound," "Maud Muller," "Barbara Frietchie," and his anti-slavery and war poems. In his "garden room" everything remains the same as Whittier left it. Upon the walls are the pictures of Star King, Emerson, Longfellow, Celia Thaxter, Gail Hamilton and others. There are his books upon the shelves, the open grate, and furniture the same as when he, inspired, wrote for all mankind. Up one story, looking out upon the garden, is the bedroom, the same as when the seer and prophet of his times occupied it. In this room are the pictures of "Raphael" and "Sisters," looking down from the walls as when he wrote of them; and there is the picture of his mother, which he prized most of all. In speaking once to a friend of his home he said "my home is where my mother's picture hangs." In his study have sat Charles Sumner, Gail Hamilton, Lucy Larcom, Thomas Starr King, Bayard Taylor, Emerson, Garrison, Celia Thaxter and others who have been and are distinguished the wide world through.

If the walls of that home could speak in audible tones and so reproduce the conversation had there from time to time, who with listening ear would not feel himself hardly less than divinely inspired? But those walls do speak, telling of Whittier and of his illustrious companionship. As we went from room to room in that home by the side of the river he so much loved, we felt that we were on consecrated ground. The home is pregnant with the life of that sweet soul that once had its dwelling place therein. As we caught sight of the Merrimac, Whittier's poem entitled "The Chapel of the Hermits" came to us anew, and in tuneful melody. The scene of this poem was laid by the side of the river of which he so frequently sang, and in the autumn time when leaf and forest were all aglow with rarest tint; and so he wrote:

"My friend, we need not rock nor sand,
Nor stried stream of Morning Land;
The heavens are glassed in Merrimac,
What more could Jordan render back?"

We lack but open eye and ear
To find the Orient's marvels here:
The still small voice in autumn's hush,
The maple wood, the burning bush."

And then who is not touched by that simple, child-like faith that Whittier so beautifully and tenderly expresses in that verse entitled "The Eternal Goodness?"

The Quaker poet put to the sweetest melody will sing on so long as time shall be. Death to Whittier, means only that freer and fuller translation of a life so pure and fragrant with the virtues here, into that more radiant and majestic life in which he had such an unquestioning faith.

Our day in Amesbury on Friday brought us in nearer touch with the soul and genius of him whose song is a divine inspiration, and whose life is and ever will be a benediction to men and women everywhere.

As will be seen in another column of this issue of the Enterprise, the flag presentation and dance given by the ladies of Arlington to the Veteran Firemen's association in the Town hall on Wednesday evening marks an event in the history of the old Eureka. This association of veteran firemen well understand how to arrange for the biggest kind of a celebration.

This office is under obligations to Mr. Frank W. Hodgdon, a member of the Board of State Commissioners on Topographical Survey, for a copy of the annual report of the commission. The report contains much valuable information concerning state and town boundary lines. Its maps are well executed, and convey much that is interesting.

The Scotch entertainment to be given in Grand Army Hall on Thursday evening, March 29th, for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Orthodox church will be a novel and interesting affair. Mrs. Walter Crosby and Mrs. Winfield Durgin, managers of the entertainment, will not fail to make it a "braw nicht," and one of rare enjoyment. Remember the date—Thursday, March 29th.

In a letter received from a friend in New Hampshire the other day is the following pleasant paragraph of one of our clergy: "I much enjoyed reading the report published in the Enterprise of the sermon given by the pastor of the Arlington Baptist church on 'Religion a joy.' Isn't it fine? I would like to know the Rev. Dr. Watson, the author of that sermon. He must be a glad and good person to meet."

The last sociable of the Congregational church and society for the season was held on Wednesday evening in the vestry of the church. It was well attended and a most enjoyable time was had. Mrs. Hooker read, to the great pleasure of the company, three selections. Master Henry Dolan and his brother from Cambridge sang very effectively several selections. Miss Hilliard sang a favorite selection. An elaborate supper was served.

Mr. William E. Wood, of the firm of W. T. Wood & Co., has been for two days this present week on Lake Winnepesaukee, up in New Hampshire, where the ice is at present 20 inches thick, trying his new ice planer. This planer is a decided improvement over others, because it goes immediately at its work without any previous grooving of the ice. W. T. Wood & Co. are up to date in every instance in all that relates to improved machinery.

At the meeting of Ida F. Butler Rebekah lodge last Monday evening the Rebekah degree was conferred upon five candidates. Visitors were present from Ramona and Olive Branch Rebekah lodges. Very encouraging words were spoken by Mrs. Jennie E. Bettinson, special deputy of the grand master. The grand marshal, Mrs. Mary Mills, gave some very interesting facts in regard to the Odd Fellows' home at Worcester, Mass.

Dr. Watson preached on Sunday morning on "Christian citizenship," and in course of the sermon used some pretty plain speech in reference to the duty of voting, and the protection of children from temptation. He also made some very pointed allusions to recent happenings in juvenile crime, and placed the responsibility upon the parents, alleging that there is a prevalent slackening of home discipline that is working disaster. He held that many men are slack and irresponsible citizens because they are a dead failure as fathers.

Mrs. and Mrs. Nathan D. Jaquith, whose pleasant home is on Medford street, were most agreeably surprised on Tuesday evening by a visit from a number of Mr. Jaquith's friends from Boston, who vigorously pulled the latch-string of his door, in response to which there was a generous "come in." Mr. Jaquith and his newly-made bride were presented with a beautiful parlor clock. Mine host and hostess gave the Boston friends a sumptuous supper, and an enjoyable evening was spent.

For 45 years Mr. G. H. Hubbard has been away from this town where for five years he made his home. On last Wednesday he came to town to attend the flag presentation, for Mr. Hubbard was an active member of the Eureka Co. in the 50s, being employed in the Paul Dodge pianoforte hardware. Mr. Melville Haskell entertained him, they being old shopmates together. Mr. Hubbard hopes soon to take up his residence here with his son, Mr. C. H. Hubbard of Orient Heights. Both will be cordially welcomed here.

It is always a delight to meet Mr. J. T. Trowbridge at his pleasant home on Pleasant street, or elsewhere. Mr. Trowbridge always has about him the sunshine, and he never fails to impart its warmth and glow to those whom he meets. Our call at his study on Thursday found the distinguished writer and author at his best. Mr. Trowbridge is an optimist, so that he is always looking on the better side of everything. His mission has been and is through voice and pen to make others happy and the world better.

The Young Ladies' Mission circle, under the auspices of the Baptist church, held on Wednesday afternoon and evening a sale in Pleasant hall on Maple street. The several tables were attractively arranged with their variety of useful articles. Miss Gertrude Frost and Miss Georgia Sawyer had charge of the domestic table. Miss Carrie Fillebrown and Miss Amy Russell cared for the fancy table. At the candy table were Miss Alice Upham and Miss Sophia Freeman. Miss Priscilla Russell presided at the flower table. Ice cream table was in charge of Miss Marcia Smith. A variety of beautiful flowers from the greenhouses of Mr. H. L. Frost were much admired, and found a ready sale. There was an excellent attendance in the afternoon, and especially so in the evening. The sales at the several tables were readily made, and at paying prices. Miss Georgia Sawyer is president of the circle, Miss Priscilla Russell secretary, and Miss Gertrude Frost treasurer.

The dance on Tuesday evening, held in Grand Army hall under the management of Miss Langley, was the last of the brilliant series of dances she has given during the present season. These assemblies have brought together the elite of the younger people in Arlington. Miss Langley may congratulate herself that she has afforded her patrons so much pleasure through these social functions. The dance on Tuesday evening was in every way a brilliant gathering. There were 27 couples present. The ladies were charmingly attired in evening dress, and the gentlemen were in full dress. The matrons of the occasion were Mrs. William G. Rice, Miss Langley and Mrs. Whittemore. Poole's orchestra rendered the music. Caterer Hardy served the elaborate supper in Delmonico style. It was an attractive picture as the merry dancers, to the beat of music, went through the intricate steps of the latest in the terpsichorean world. The entire party had many pleasant words for Miss Langley in her successful management of the series of dances which have proved so enjoyable.

The dramatic entertainment given last evening in the Unitarian vestry was enjoyed by the large audience present. Mr. W. H. N. Francis, under whose personal management the play was rendered, as we have said before, must have a natural liking for the stage. His acting comes well nigh being professional. His pose, facial expression, intonation of voice, and movements are all in keeping with those of the artist. Miss Grace Gage always makes a success of any part she attempts to render. The two characters she assumed last evening, in part 1 and part 2, were exceedingly difficult, but Miss Gage nevertheless proved herself equal to the occasion. Miss Helen G. Damon gets a strong hold upon her audience through her easy and natural acting. As Mrs. Mountrevor, she showed herself possessed of all those inventive resources which never fail to obtain the object in view; and as Dulcie Meredith in part 2, she was especially attractive and captivating, so much so that we felt ourselves quite in sympathy with Guy Charlton, who came to that top floor lodging house to thrash the brother when unexpectedly meeting the sister he fell desperately in love with her and she finally with him, so that the brother escaped the proposed beating while the last seen of Dulcie and Guy they were in each other's embraces. Miss Alice W. Homer well sustained her part. Mr. John G. Brackett was up to date in the rendering of the part assigned him. Mr. Fred W. Damon, as Lord Weldon, had about him all the dignity of his social position. Mr. Walter Hoyt, the butler of Lord Weldon, did capably well. We have neither time nor space to give a full analysis of the play, which was exceedingly well rendered in all its parts. Arlington, and especially the Unitarian church and society, are under many obligations to Mr. Francis for the time he gives in arranging for the agreeable instruction and amusement of our people. We would most respectfully suggest to Mr. Francis that he in future secure the Town hall for his entertainments. The vestry of the Unitarian church is in no way fitting for such a pleasant entertainment as he gives. With no oxygen one must exchange breaths with the crowd.

The Rev. S. C. Bushnell celebrated another of his anniversary birthdays on Wednesday.

The no-license meeting in the Town hall was well attended by our citizens on Sunday evening. The young people's chorus had charge of the music. Selections were rendered in keeping with the object of the hour. Mr. William E. Wood had the management of the choir in the selections rendered and in the practice of their rendition.

The Rev. Dr. Watson pleasantly introduced Representative J. Howell Crosby as chairman of the evening. Mr. Crosby said: "I thank you for the honor of making me chairman of this meeting. We meet to further that which is for the best interest of the town and for purely unselfish motives. I am optimistic enough to believe Arlington's policy on the question was firmly fixed. We have those in our town who believe nothing has been accomplished and other who think nothing remains to be done. There was a time when we gathered in this hall with great anxiety and apprehension. A generation has grown up in our town who have never seen a saloon in the town."

Mr. Crosby, upon the conclusion of his introductory remarks, introduced to the audience Mrs. Fessenden, ex-president of the Massachusetts Women's Temperance union.

Mrs. Fessenden made an exceedingly interesting address. Her thought was that no one has the moral right to engage in any business that works injury to the individual and to the state. Her talk of an hour had nothing of a political bias in it or about it. She made this temperance cause the people's cause. She gave statistics showing that the licensed saloon is always at the cost of the public. But the stress of her argument was placed upon the utter destruction that comes from the sale and use of that which intoxicates to the individual and the community granting license.

Mrs. Fessenden is an easy and graceful speaker, and in every way familiar with her subject.

Following Mrs. Fessenden's address came another selection rendered by the choir.

Then Mr. Crosby in a happy way introduced Representative W. D. Howland of Chelsea.

Mr. Howland is a staunch no-license man, and he comes from a no-license city. A man of good presence, and a ready speaker, he had an attentive hearing. Mr. Howland treated the subject of no-license in a business manner, showing by the facts presented that the community is better off with no-license. He dwelt quite at length on how Chelsea had been brought into the no-license column by presenting this whole question in a business way to those who were slow to believe that the withholding of license for the sale of intoxicating liquors would benefit the town or city. This middle class, as Mr. Howland termed it, had shown itself willing to try the experiment of no-license, and so at last had come to see that it was and is of financial gain to Chelsea. Mr. Howland deems it advisable to always approach those men who doubt the wisdom of no-license in a reasonable way, and thereby if possible secure their help.

A good word is especially due the young people's chorus. Miss Swadkins presided at the organ. The clergymen of the town were well represented at the meeting, most of them occupying seats on the platform.

Expressman Edwards is happy over the coming of a boy baby at his home.

Wm. P. Schwamb & Bro. should be consulted should you wish any work in their line. Read their advertisement.

GOLF CLUB.

Mr. William Gordon's services have been secured to give instructions to the members in golf playing.

A formal opening of the house will occur as soon after April 1 as it will be deemed advisable.

A great change has taken place in the club house. The same has been thoroughly renovated, electric lights have been installed, a heater put in, laboratories and a wide piazza added which runs entirely around the house. A locker room has been added, and lockers are now ready for distribution to members, and can be had by applying to Mr. William T. Foster, Jr.

On Tuesday evening, March 13, will occur the golf ball in Town hall. It is to be a social gathering of members and friends to become more closely acquainted before the golf season opens. The price of tickets is $1.00, and can be procured of Messrs. Charles H. Carter, C. O. Hill and any of the following aids: Messrs. W. T. Foster, Jr., Robert Bacon, H. Maxwell Brooks, W. D. Elwell, W. Munroe Hill. A full attendance is hoped for, as it will be a grand affair.

CRESCENT HILL CLUB.

The pupils of the drawing school are drawing from printed models. Heretofore Prof. Kirchmayer drew the subject the exact size, but now the pupils enlarge the model themselves.

A large party was present on Tuesday evening (Ladies' night). Master Daniel O'Keefe of Cambridge and Miss LeFabbre of Somerville Highlands gave a very fine exhibition of cake walking in costume, and were loudly encored.

William Grebenstein has the sympathy of the club on the sad loss of his 2-year-old son, which occurred on Monday.

Mr. W. Varney of North Cambridge was a guest of the club on Tuesday.
